What is the secret of Sonic's success? How does Sonic feel about things? Why does he like burgers and fries? Why is Dr Robotnik egg-shaped? To find the answers to these and other questions, we sent out famed Earth reporter Scoop Tomlinson to the Planet Mobius, to meet Sonic himself. The result is this exclusive conversation with one of the great SUPERheroes of our time...

THE SONIC INTERVIEW

A blue flash went past me. Fast. Very fast! It's not often you're overtaken by a hedgehog. It's very rare to be overtaken by a blue hedgehog. It's just about unique to be passed by a blue hedgehog travelling at supersonic speed! But it happened to me.

"Hold on there!" I said. There was a noise like the squeal of a hundred brakes being applied simultaneously.

The blue blur became more distinct. It WAS a hedgehog!

It was SONIC THE HEDGEHOG!

At first, I was totally overcome. I'd met celebrities from all branches of show business, but never before had I met the hedgehog himself. I gulped. "Can...can you give me a brief interview, Mr Sonic?"

The star nodded.

"F-forgive my nervousness," I stammered. "I've never interviewed a hero before..." Sonic frowned. I didn't like the look of that frown!

"I'm not a hero. I'm a SUPERhero! It's something that just happened to me. I didn't want to be great. I just am."

There was another blur of speed and Sonic vanished for a couple of seconds. Then he returned, like a jet-propelled blue rocket.

"Just been for a ten mile whizz around our location," explained the SUPERhero. "Just to make sure old Robotnik isn't hovering around somewhere. He isn't. So we can continue..."

"How did it all start?" I questioned, nervously.

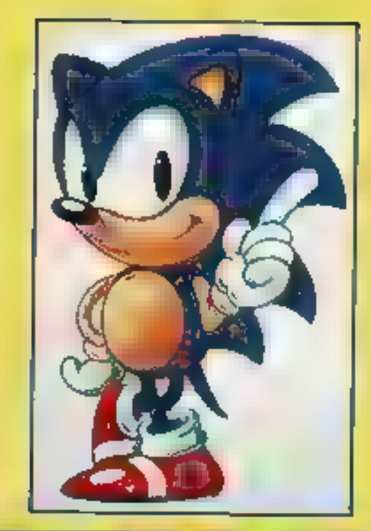
Sonic sat down. "It's a long story," he said. "But I'll speed through it. Just as I speed through everything. It started like this..."

For the next one and a half minutes, Sonic told his story. The words came cascading out, like machine-gun fire. I had been warned about this and had come prepared. I recorded everything Sonic said on my cassette-recorder. I recorded all his words at normal speed. Later, I was able to play the interview on SLOW speed, which meant I could understand everything which was said. Sonic's motto is: "A tale told quickly is a tale told well!" He certainly followed the advice of that motto. Thank you to the guy who invented the tape recorder!

Here's the special, slowed-down version of our interview:

"I was an orphan. I grew up with my forest

'I'm not a hero... I'm a SUPERhero. It's something that just happened to me...'



THE SONIC INTERVIEW

"Robotnik spent a lot of time trying to capture or destroy me..."

friends in the Green Hill Zone of the Planet Mobius. Each of my friends taught me something. Things like speed, cleverness, how to enjoy burgers, fries, cola and candy bars. I learned how to develop most of the 'forest smarts'. They're the same as 'street smarts' - only better!"

SUPERhero Sonic was enjoying telling me this story. But he couldn't sit still for long. Occasionally, he sped away on a fast, few seconds, ten mile circuit, giving me time to check the recorder was functioning correctly. Then Sonic was ready to continue.

"If there's one thing I like, it's exploring. One day I tunnelled into a laboratory owned by a good dude named Doctor Ovi Kintobor. This guy was a brilliant scientist and he'd got a plan. It was a real cool plan to help the Planet Mobius rid itself of evil. The Doc invented a gadget called the Retro-Orbital Chaos Compressor. That bit of apparatus could transfer evil from one object to another!"

"Sounds useful..." I muttered, stopping when I saw Sonic glare at me, wanting to carry on with his story.

"Doctor Kintobor found the perfect objects for the transfer process. Six fantastic Emeralds, which he named 'Chaos Emeralds'. Most of the evil on Mobius is stored in the Emeralds...but they become very unstable. To make them safe, Ovi Kintobor had to find emerald number seven...the Grey Emerald, which could neutralise the violent forces in the Emeralds."

Sonic paused for a micro-second. "Don't worry...I feature more in this story later on!"

"Doc Kintobor installed Personal Computers all over Mobius, so that passing folk could input info about the Grey Emerald. His Retro-Orbital Chaos Compressor (ROCC) was standing-by to transfer the last piece of the world's evil into the Grey Emerald and stabilise things. The ROCC consisted of thousands of gold rings, that constantly flowed good feeling around the machine, as the evil was transferred."

Exit Sonic on a quick speed run, while I check the recorder's batteries.

"Now some stuff about ME!" Sonic grinned. "The good Doc and myself became pals and I used his experimental, supersonic treadmill. Running on it enabled me to build up my speed until eventually I broke the sound barrier! The Doc had to invent some special red sneakers for me, to protect my feet when I was on high-speed runs!"

Sonic examined the colour of his skin.

"The very first time I ran at the speed of sound, my quills and body became tempered blue-hot from the supersonic shock-waves. They've stayed that way ever since!"

"Now this is where things started to go a bit wrong. I was visiting Doctor Kintobor, who was entering some commands into the ROCC. I looked into his refrigerator to get a snack...and all I found was a rotten egg. I gave it to Kintobor to smell... and that's when it happened. Doc fed the wrong command into the system and it went berserk. The ROCC zapped the Chaos Emeralds, Doc Kintobor and the rotten egg he was holding. Some of the evil in the emeralds was transferred to the good Doc, changing him into the evil Doctor Ivo Robotnik, who at once took on the physical characteristics of the egg, growing to grotesque proportions. Then the ROCC exploded, sending its golden rings all over the planet!"

Sonic paused for another micro-second.

"It was dramatic stuff," he continued. "One second Doctor Kintobor, the next, someone very different. I looked down at the round shape that was sprawled on the floor. Even the name-tag had changed on the figure. To make sure everyone knew what had happened, it now read Dr Ivo Robotnik. Just as I was reading that tag, Robotnik woke up and started yelling at me. He was ranting and raving. Telling me how he was going to gain control of the whole planet. How he was going to launch the Emeralds into space and they would help him control the world!"

Telling that part of the story seemed almost too much for Sonic. Once again, he shifted into top gear and made a very hasty circuit of the nearest mountain, his speed almost blowing the cassette-recorder out of my hand. When he returned, with no hint of being breathless, he went on with his amazing story.

"Suddenly, the evil Robotnik realised that I was the only one who knew about his transformation, and his plan for world domination. Robotnik tried to grab me...but I was too fast for him. I raced out of the lab and back to the Green Hill Zone. Folks had to be warned about what had happened!"

Sonic's words still seemed super-fast, even when I played them back at slow speed.

"From then on, Robotnik spent a lot of time trying to capture or destroy me. He placed traps everywhere. He even managed to capture my friends and transform them into robots, programmed to attack me."

I thought it was time to ask a question. Reporters are trained to do that sort of thing. "You sure were facing a tough scenario, Sonic..."

Sonic nodded at super-speed. "But there's more. Robotnik launched a psychedelic Warp of Confusion (Secret Zone) around each Emerald in orbit. That really made things tough. Remember, only the Grey Emerald has the power to neutralise the power of the Chaos Emeralds. So I had to attempt to find that Grey Emerald. I had to fight my way through all the Zones to locate Robotnik and destroy him. And I had to free my friends, of course!"

"It was a big job!" I said.

"It's a job that is still going on," said Sonic.

The SUPERhero got to his feet so fast, I dropped the cassette-recorder.

"Time to go!" he stated, preparing to speed away for the last time.

"It's been a pleasure meeting you!" I yelled after him.

"It must have been!" came the reply from the blue blur that was already almost a mile away from me.

And that is it. My meeting with the super Sonic. With the SUPERhero. He had impressed me. This blue hedgehog with the SUPERhero status, the fabulous speed and the sensational spikes. Interviewing other people won't be the same after this. For, after all, there is only one SONIC THE HEDGEHOG!

SONIC THE HEDGEHOG 2

FORMAT: MEGADRIVE
STYLE: ARCADE
MEMORY SIZE: 8MB
COMPANY: SEGA
AVAILABLE: NOW

If you haven't already tried it, get ready for some sizzling action with Sonic 2 for the Sega Megadrive! Sonic 2 features 10 new zones to battle through and there are masses of extra features that take Sonic 2 way ahead of the original Sonic. The aim is similar, in that you have to liberate your furry friends and collect seven Chaos Emeralds...BUT the Emeralds can only be collected on successful completion of an all-new, special zone. More of this later.

Sonic now has a sidekick in the form of Tails. He is a two-tailed fox, who tags along...helping and hindering Sonic in his adventures. If Tails falls behind, he can whiz back in by spinning his tails like propellers and catching up with Sonic. If Sonic gets into trouble, Tails will jump in and ram the nearest nasty...or collect rings for Sonic.

The game options allow you to choose either Sonic or Tails as your main game character or you can choose Sonic, with Tails following along behind. This can be helpful in the main stages, but it is tough in the Special Zones where Tails gets to run into aliens!

There are ten zones to work through and all new nasties to conquer. The zones include the amazingly fast Chemical Plant Zone; the very nasty underwater Aquatic Ruin Zone; the never-ending Metropolis Zone and the creepy Mystic Cave Zone.

Sonic can attack in a different way, with his Super Spin Dash. To use this, Sonic stands on the spot and spins at high speed. You can use this move to get up high walls or to pass speedy aliens. To help you along the way, there are special items hidden in TVs in each zone. They include Speed up Shoes that more than double your speed, invincibility for a limited time, a one hit shield and rings.

To give Sonic 2 even more challenge, the programmers built in a two-player option with a split screen. You can race against a friend to see who can score most points, collect most rings and super items...or simply complete a course in the shortest time.

To get a Chaos Emerald you have to collect 50 rings and then touch a Star Post. This will warp you to the all-new special stage. This is a fun stage where you have to loop the loop going down a tunnel, collecting a set number of rings. If you manage to hit the ring targets set, you are awarded a Chaos Emerald at the end of each special stage.

This is one of the first games to show the true potential of Mega CD. It has you playing Sherlock Holmes in three intriguing cases. The game starts by offering you the option to listen to a general introduction by Holmes, or by a cursory outline of the crime and what your initial lines of investigation should be.

On starting the game, you get sampled music with titles scrolling neatly along showing the three cases. You then go to a menu and you can select the case you want with Holmes' pipe as the icon. There are also options to save a current game or load a previous one, as the Mega CD has a battery back-up RAM.

This menu also allows you to learn about how to play the game, by using the icons and persons named. At your disposal is a notebook, which you can use to store details on suspects, a directory, giving you access to the London directory which has the names and details you can transfer to your notebook. The Times newspaper is a little gold mine of information and you can flick through back issues for snippets and events. If the personal touch is required, you can travel to a person or place and actually see footage of Holmes talking to suspects or quizzing Police and other useful bods.

To save time, there are the Baker Street Irregulars. These boys can get the inside gen a lot quicker than Holmes. The great detective has his own files on the criminals in London and you can look back and see who did what to whom. When you feel that you have cracked a case, you can go to court and declare who you think did the murder and what their motive was.

This is a ground breaking game offering hours of challenging game play and tricky puzzles and clues to solve. The digitised footage really makes you feel that you are part of things. There are no short cuts to solving cases. You have to approach each one logically and give good reasons when you go to court.

If you have a Mega CD, this is a game well worth having! It makes you feel like a real detective!

A very neat option is the Track Editor which allows you to choose from any one of 16 countries and then actually lay out the course to your own taste! You can then save that track for racing at a future date.

The Free Practice takes you to a screen with the track from each country being rotated and scaled for your delectation, with some stats on the course. You can then practise on it to your heart's content.

To race properly, you can choose from all the tracks but you will soon find that they are best approached in a set sequence, to gain the relevant experience and road handling characteristics of your car. On choosing your track, you get to see a summary of the track conditions; a few choice words of advice from your resident course expert; prize money up for grabs and cost of entry.

You can listen to music to race to, by selecting tracks from your car's hi-fi unit. When you have had enough, you can exit and go to the race itself. You have to qualify for the main race by doing a single lap against the clock. At the end, you are shown your position on the grid in relation to the other 20 drivers, based on the time taken to complete the lap.

The main race is a toughie, with you having to slam on the brakes and hit the pedal at just the right time with other cars rolling into you from the side. If you get it right, you get to stand on the podium for a dramatic prize giving ceremony. The graphics are smooth and scaled and the music is just perfect for this driving thrash. The sound effects are good and there are digitized sound samples really encouraging you to go for it!

THE FLINTSTONES

FORMAT: MEGADRIVE
STYLE: PLATFORM
MEMORY SIZE: 4MB
COMPANY: TAITO
AVAILABLE: NOW

Fred Flintstone has arrived on the Megadrive, compliments of arcade giant Taito. The Flintstones is an arcade romp with the action set on a horizontally scrolling back drop.

You take the role of Fred and you have to complete set missions. These include finding a fish hook for Barney, finding Pebbles when she wanders off and finding Wilma's salt shaker! Even Betty gets to make an appearance and asks Fred to find her favourite ribbon which she lost on a train journey.

The action is varied, with you clubbing your way across seas and prehistoric terrain. The underwater sequence has you floating around taking out mean fish and flashing jellyfish. The car driving sequence will have you leaping over cliffs and collecting goodies while trying to anticipate what comes next! The goodies include food, power ups, invincibility and even flying birds that will wing you away! The graphics are superb, with cartoon-like animation.

The sound is fun and really keeps the action bouncing along. You even get the same music from the TV series and some great sound effects.

If you are having problems getting through the game then try the option menu and choose from three difficulty levels, or check out the sounds and joystick configurations to see what suits you best. This is definitely a game you should have in your Megadrive collection, as it has all the makings of a classic!

As Fred would say: "Yabba Dabba Do!"

SEGA NEWS

NEW 6-BUTTON ARCADE POWER STICK!

The Mega CD II, shown with the new 6-button power stick.

Prepare for some hot new action with the arrival of the new, 6-button Arcade Power Stick. This palm sweating hunk of a stick now allows you to get the most from your new games that have optional 6-button control. You can switch between three and six button games at the flick of a switch.

Its shape is similar to the old Arcade Power Stick, but it is slightly bigger, and the three extra buttons are situated in an arc across the original A, B, and C buttons. There are also sliders for rapid fire and slo-mo functions. For fighting games like Streetfighter II on the Megadrive, it is a must-buy with the possibility for more moves. It boasts a new colour scheme that has the fire buttons coloured red with the traditional tough black casing.

It should retail for around £30 and is guaranteed to give you more play for your pay!

IT'S UP, UP AND AWAY!

As you will have seen on page 19, Sega has created a monster Sonic Balloon that is over 70 feet high. Sonic takes to the skies at weekends and can be seen at balloon festivals and races all around the world.

He was built by a specialist balloon company that used mega 3-D plans and special computer generated images to design the shape and mechanics of the balloon, to make sure it would fly! Sonic made his first appearance at a balloon festival in Switzerland where he caused a storm, not to mention a few raised eyebrows!

The Sonic balloon has him in one of his classic poses with his finger wagging...so the next time you look up at the sky, don't be too surprised if you see Sonic floating by!

MEGADRIVE DESIGN CHANGES!

Sega are launching a new Megadrive console. The Megadrive II is basically the same as the current Megadrive, except for a number of new design features. The new console will have a new, smoother, sleeker shape. The Power and Reset buttons will be on top of the unit and be coloured red.

At the back of the console, there will only be a power socket and a Audio/Video port. The Audio/Video port allows hook up to standard televisions, as well as more specialist monitors capable of AV input and arcade quality RGB pictures. The headphone socket will disappear and stereo sound can be taken from the Audio/Video port with a special cable.

Joypad ports remain to the front of the console and it can be connected to the Mega CD II by a recessed connector on the right hand side.

As if remodelling one piece of hardware was not enough, the Mega CD was also due a face lift. It has been streamlined like the Megadrive. It is thinner and has a distinctly futuristic style. The buttons are modelled in the same colour as the Megadrive and differences are also quite cosmetic. That is the new version in the photo on the opposite page.

The main change has been with the way users get access. There is a pop-up lid, as against the original sliding drawer. There is a red LED to show when the disc is being accessed and the Mega CD logo has been stamped into the lid of the unit. Unlike the original Mega CD, the new Megadrive slides in from the left on a moulded plastic base rather than being top-mounted. To ensure no upgrade problems, the new Mega CD has a special extender and edge connector so owners of the original Megadrive can mount their console on the new Mega CD. All Mega CD titles that run on the original Mega CD will be fully compatible with the new design.

STREETFIGHTER II FIGHTS IT OUT ON MEGADRIVE!

OK! Grease up those palms and get ready for the ultimate fighting challenge! Streetfighter II is heading for a Megadrive near you! The classic Capcom fighter has been converted to the Sega 16-bit flagship with plenty of extra features.

The Megadrive version, called Streetfighter II Champion Edition, has all the usual arcade graphics and sound. All the same character voices and some original music. To show the real processing power of the Megadrive there are also new features. Goodies include World Warriors tournament and the character v character mode. You can even chose the colours of the players' clothes and take the part of the bosses in battle. The eight characters in the game have new moves and the game itself actually plays faster than the arcade original!

To make sure you get the most out of your Streetfighter II game, Capcom has configured it to work with the special Sega 6-button controller. You can do three and four button moves with the greatest of ease now and mix the fighting combo moves between punches and kicks. The ordinary three buttons (A, B, C) give you the ability to do kicks while the extra three buttons (X,Y, Z) are for those heavy duty punches.

As you can see from the pictures, it is one hot translation from the coin-op and was well worth the wait.
